

Welcome to the San Diego School of Creative and Performing Arts!

As the new President of Friends of SCPA (FOSCPA), I look forward to an amazing new year and getting to know all of our new and returning families.

The Friends of SCPA, a charitable nonprofit organization, is the "Foundation" that supports arts education for all students at this remarkable school. We are a tuition-free and donation dependent magnetic arts school. Friends of SCPA helps to provide an equitable arts education for all students.

We believe that when parents take an active role in their child's education, it contributes to their overall success. Your involvement is not only extremely important to your children but also to how our school operates. Whether you have an hour or you would love to play a recurring role on campus, we have many opportunities for you to get involved. Detailed information can always be found on our website at sdscpa.org. It is our goal that when you are on campus, you feel like you are with family.

We are excited that your child will be part of this school, and we look forward to getting to know your family! Please feel free to contact me should you have any questions about our foundation or how to become involved at LSandino@friendsofscpa.org.
